BOOKS AND MAGAZINES.

"The Preacher's Daughter," by Amelia E. Barr, is no doubt the best, most interesting and most powerful book ever written by this popular author, if the opinion of an eminent critic is entitled to approval. The story is certainly a superb study and one that enhances the devotion of the Barr school of fiction. Published by Bradley & Woodruff, Boston. Price, $1.25; 355 pages. For sale by Eaton & Lyon.

"Michael and Theodore," a Russian Christmas story, by Amelia E. Barr, is a singularly strong and impressive story of child life among the aristocracy of Russia. Although the cruel treachery and exile and sacrifice of property occur, as well as great religious loyalty and love for the great czar, the story develops the noble and beautiful character of the young prince and princess (Michael and Theodore), making it so instructive and interesting to young people that they should not pass it by. Published by Bradley & Woodruff, Boston. Price, 75 cents. For sale by Eaton & Lyon.

"Autobiography," by Walt Whitman. Edited by Arthur Steadman. The story of Whitman's life, told in his own words. These selected passages from Whitman's prose works, chosen with his approbation, are so arranged as to give a consecutive account of the old poet's career in his own picturesque language. Uniform with the new edition of Walt Whitman's "Selected Poems." (Fiction, Fact, and Fancy Series.) Cloth, 12 mo, 75 cents. For sale by Eaton & Lyon.

"Four On An Island" is the title of a handsomely bound volume for little folks by L. T. Meade, published by Cassell & Co., New York. The book is one that will charm the children, as it is written in that peculiar style which invests stories of adventure with fascinating interest. The author has touched upon the perils of the sea, giving to his pictures just enough of romantic coloring to make them agreeable to lovers of literary art of advanced years, so that his book will not be shelved by the older ones. It is worthy a place in any family library for it teaches a wholesome lesson with its leaving a suspicion of pedantry. It is printed in the large, clear type and uniform with the Cassell's picture books and may be purchased from Palmer, Meech & Co.

"Messages from Mars," by Robert D. Brainer, J. S. Ogilvie & Co., is one of those brainless productions given to the public on the wave of curiosity following the recent observations made of the planet. The author apologizes for the credulousness of his work and will be may, for it possesses neither literary merit nor the germ of an interesting narrative. In paper 50 cents.

Mrs. Alexander has written several novels of surprising interest, but "The Slave of the Powder" just issued by Cassell & Co. is perhaps the boldest and strongest of her productions. It is essentially a story of romance. The plot is delicately conceived, after the mold of a woman's mind, and is carried through to its climax in a series of fascinating dialogues. The story is so refreshing that one returns to it for a second reading and yet it tells of love—the triumph of love over the obstacles—an oft told tale to be sure, yet it never loses its charm. In closing the author asks "Yet who that has traveled moon and far on the dusty, stormy ways of life can doubt that such life above selfishness, or that border brings her their backs to the lash if thereby they can save the tender ones they love? Palmer, Meech & Co."

The autumn and winter exhibit of dress fabrics is novel, elegant and most bewildering in variety and suited to all purposes and tastes. Plain and fancy camel-hair serge, a gorgeous array of changeable velvets, velours ecossais, velourine ombre, Scotch plaids, new stuffs in gay Persian, Turkish and Russian colors, silk and wool jacquards, fancy satines and bengalines that are short, striped, plaided, basket woven and ridedout, are some of the novelties from over the sea. The McDowell Fashion Journal, published at No. 4 West 14th street, New York, are the first to publish these models and present them in an infinite variety, intended to meet all tastes and circumstances of life. "Paris A la Mode of Fashion" and "La Mode de Paris" are used by the most stylish dressmakers. The price of each is only $3.50 a year. "La Couturiere" is the great favorite and has attained an immense success, being $3 a year. "La Mode" is the best fashion journal ever offered for the yearly subscription price of $1.50.

Upon a second examination of "A Pretty Surprise," the book proves so delightful in every way that we believe it will be a favor to our readers to refer to it again. It is handsomely illustrated, mainly by Birket Foster, one of the most famous of English artists, and bound in exquisite taste in a combination of white and blue cloth, with gilt edges and ornaments, and is sold only by the publisher direct (not by book-sellers), at approximately the actual cost of manufacture by the hundred thousands—19 cents a copy, plus 5 cents postage, if by mail. Its object is to place an example of his book making in the hands of a vast number of readers. He could certainly choose no more excellent volume, to please all people of good taste. His catalogue of books, covering every department of literature, a veritable feast of good things for book-lovers, and at wonderfully low prices, considerably over 100 pages in size, is sent post-paid for 2 cents. Address, John B. Alden, publisher, No. 57 Rose street, New York.

Mr. F. Hopkinson Smith, who is now in Venice, completed just before his departure from New York the text of his book on "American Illustrators," which Charles Scribner's Sons will publish in a Japan Edition de Luxe in a few days. The author's plan has been to divide his subjects into groups, and present both his criticisms and descriptions in the form of conversations. The illustrations are of a very exceptional character. Besides nearly 100 text engravings, portraits, sketches, etc., there are fifteen large plates, eight of them in color, fac-similes of the original drawings. The artists included in the large plates are Abbey, Reinhart, Homer, Gibson, Remington, Smedley, Metcalf, Low, Cox, Kingsley, Pyle, Frost, Zogbaum and Blum. But 1,000 of the Japan edition are printed, and a large proportion of these have already been subscribed for ten days before publication.

A Lesson in Natural History.

"There! Another mosquito has bitten me!" exclaimed Mrs. Snaggs, as she made a rapid escape from the insect and only succeeded in striking the spot where it had been operating.

"I think you are mistaken," replied Mr. Snaggs.

"Mistaken? Indeed I'm not! I know a mosquito's bite when I feel one."

"That is precisely where you are mistaken," Mr. Snaggs went on. "I know you merely follow colloquial usage in saying the mosquito bit you, but nevertheless usage is wrong. It is always well to be accurate, and in this case it is not accurate to speak of a mosquito's bite. The mosquito's operations in search of food are truly interesting, especially when he is operating on some other person's epidermis. He carries with him a remarkable kit of tools, consisting of two saws, a lance and a pump. With the lance a puncture is made in the skin, but the perforation is not wide enough for the insertion of the pump, which is to transfer a portion of your blood to the insect's stomach. So the saws are introduced and they commence to widen the puncture. It is the operation of the saw which causes the irritation to which you allude as a bite. You see, my dear, how inaccurate it is to talk of a mosquito's bite. Don't you?"

"Mr. Snaggs?"

"Well?"

"You irritate me a great deal more than the mosquitoes do. Now I want to ask you one question."

"Go ahead."

"What constitutes a bite?"

"Well, there can be no bite without teeth."

"Then, Mr. Snaggs," exclaimed his wife, triumphantly, "I am right after all. The mosquito bites with the teeth of his saws. Mr. Snaggs, it is always well to be accurate. Now?"

But she did not finish. A yell and a vicious slap from her husband indicated that one of the mosquitoes was giving him a lesson in the use of the saws—Pittsburg Chronicle.

Expensive Fox Hunting.

Lord Yarborough, the owner of the North Lincolnshire pack of foxhounds, in furnishing some statistics relative to fox hunting, states that there are 339 packs of hounds in England, Scotland and Ireland. Assuming the cost of foxhounds to be $500 for one day per week for the year, slaghounds to cost $350 and harriers $200, keeping up hounds in the United Kingdom causes the expenditure of $414,550, and estimating 100 men hunting with each pack, each man having three horses, that means that 99,000 horses are engaged.

Putting the cost of each horse at fifteen shillings per week, this comes to considerably over $3,500,000. So, maintains the noble lord, the cost of keeping hounds and maintaining the hunt in the United Kingdom comes altogether to $4,300,000, independent of the expenses of carriage horses, cover hacks, traveling expenses, etc.—Pitt Mail Gazette.

A Smart Yankee Skipper.

A writer in The Nautical Magazine tells a story of how a Yankee skipper contrived to free his ship from rats. While he lay in port he discovered that one of the British ships then in the harbor had among her cargo a great quantity of cheese. He thereupon found an excuse for hauling over to her and mooring his own packet alongside. The next step was to procure a plank, smear it with an odoriferous preparation of red herring and place it so as to lead through one of the ports on board the Englishman. The immediate result was a wholesale emigration of the rats from the American ship's hold to the cheese laden vessel alongside.

The Wrong Side of Fifty.

Reader, have you passed the meridian of life? Are your joints getting stiff, your muscles and sinews losing their elasticity? Are you troubled with lumbago? Are you, in short, in danger of occasional receipt of any of those ailments which nature gives to remind people that they are growing old? If so, try a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a most genial and agreeable mitigator of the indigestion, a rapid promoter of convalescence, and an effectual means of counteracting bodily decay. Good digestion, sound sleep, a hearty appetite, freedom from rheumatic twinges are among the best fruits that spring from the regular and persistent use of this superior tonic and corrective, which has received the unqualified sanction of the medical fraternity. Give it the fair trial that it deserves and you will be grateful for this advice.

Suggestions for a Summer Trip.

If you wish to take the trip of a lifetime, purchase the low rate excursion tickets sold by all the great lines of the United States and Canada via the Northern Pacific railroad to Yellowstone National Park, Pacific coast and Alaska.

The trip is made with the highest degree of comfort in the elegant vestibule train, which carry dining cars and Pullman sleeping cars from Chicago, St. Paul and Minneapolis to Montana and the Pacific coast, without change, and special Pullman sleepers from St. Paul and Minneapolis to Yellowstone Park.

The scenery en route is the most magnificent to be found in the seven states through which the road passes. Beautiful mountains, rivers, valleys, lakes and plains follow each other in rapid succession to delight the tourist who will also find interest in the agricultural, mining, lumbering, industrial and other interests associated with the development of the great northwest.

The crowning glory of the trip through the northwest, however, is the visit to Yellowstone Park, the land of hot springs, geysers and gorgeous canyons, and to Alaska, with its endless ocean channels, snowcapped peaks, Indian villages and giant glaciers.

If you wish to investigate this suggestion further send to Charles S. Fox, general passenger agent, N. P. R. R., St. Paul, Minn., for copies of the handsomely illustrated "Wonderland" book, Yellowstone Park and Alaska folders.
